What is precision medicine?

Precision medicine is health care that is based on you as an individual. It takes into account factors like where you live, what you do, and your family health history. Precision medicine's goal is to be able to tell people the best ways to stay healthy.

What is the All of Us Research Program?

All of Us is part of the Precision Medicine Initiative. It will gather information from many people to help researchers learn how to fit the right treatments to the right people. We hope that one million or more people will join the All of Us Research Program.

We are asking people from all over the United States to join All of Us so that our research reflects the diversity of our country. People who join will give us information about their health, habits, and what it's like where they live. By looking for patterns, researchers may learn more about what affects people's health.

To start your journey, go to Participant.JoinAllofUs.org and:

- 1 Create an account
- 2 Give your consent
- 3 Agree to share your electronic health records
- 4 Answer health surveys
- 5 Have your measurements taken (height, weight, blood pressure, etc.) and give blood and urine samples, if asked

After completing these steps, you'll receive $25.
