Program #11

Program Topic: Mental Health/Stress Relief from Midterms

Presentation Date: October 19, 2017

Number of Brothers in Attendance: 30

Number of non-delts in Attendance: 41

Description: Iota Epsilon chapter partnered with Camp Kesem, an organization that helps children whose parents have cancer, by giving students a relief from the stresses of midterms. A booth was set up in the center of campus where active members would ask people to pause and consider their mental health and wellbeing during the stress and business of midterms. Those who paused were encouraged to purchase a donut to treat themselves, each donut came with a one sheet detailing various services we had partnered with (Psychiatric Center, Dean of Students, etc.) that students could go to when seeking help on the somewhat taboo topic of mental health. The chapter wanted to create a calm and safe space for students to stop and pull themselves away from the stresses of being a college student. The booth was a useful support center because everyone was enduring the same situation and all of the proceeds went to Camp Kesem.
