2019

THE LEADING EDGE -
AUGUST EDITION

Message from the President

Happy New (LJC) Year! As always, we hit the ground running after our summer break. In early August we welcomed 36 high school students in our inaugural Youth Leadership Academy. It was a great opening retreat highlighting some of our best and brightest Johnson County students. In September, we will welcome our newest Signature Program participants. Anyone remember the tennis ball activity???

While some elements of LJC remain the same, this year LJC has added several new ways to benefit from our professional development training. Be sure to check out the half-day and full-day programming provided by our LJC Select Workshops. Additionally, this year LJC will bring workshops in to your office through LJC To Your Door.

To help with this growth, you will notice several new faces working with LJC. From the addition of several staff members, to a new director of curriculum for the Signature Program, to four new board members...we are ready to help you make a difference both at work and in your community. I hope to see many of you throughout the year at alumni relations events or various programming. It is a pleasure to lead this organization into our next 25 years.

LJC Select Workshops Offer Continued Professional Development Opportunities

Beyond the LJC Signature Program

LJC is most known for our 9-month Signature Program, but there is more to gain from LJC than your initial experience. We have a full line-up of half-day and full-day workshops geared toward leadership, management, team building, and personal assessment. Visit our website HERE to see the full list of programming available during the 2019-2020 year.

Professional development can be a costly venture for any business or nonprofit. If you are interested in multiple workshops, consider purchasing an LJC On Demand Punch Card for maximum flexibility and cost savings.

Also new to LJC this year is the To Your Door Workshops. We have pulled together a great list of speakers who we are dubbing our "leadership tribe" and they will bring a variety of workshops in to your place of business. From change management and conflict resolution to collaboration and communication, we have a professional development opportunity to fit your needs. More information and a complete list of available workshops can be found HERE.

If you have questions about an LJC On Demand Punch Card or the To Your Door Workshops, please contact Tandy at 317-738-8264.

Five Dysfunctions of a Team

FRANKLIN COLLEGE ROLLS OUT REIMAGINED CURRICULUM

Franklin College faculty and administrators have been hard at work for the past year and a half on the most comprehensive curricular reform in the college's 185-year history. Their collaboration, named the Pursuit at Franklin College, will be implemented in a matter of days with the start of fall semester on August 25.

The Pursuit makes engaged learning an integral part of every student's Franklin experience. It leverages many of the best practices already deeply embedded in the college's liberal arts and sciences curriculum, carries them across every discipline and integrates them into all majors. In this way, the Pursuit immerses students in four years of engaging, cohesive, transformational experiences.

According to Thomas J. Minar, Ph.D., Franklin College president, the Pursuit positions graduates to succeed in a rapidly changing world. "Throughout all of history, we can find examples of how innovative ideas have driven economies and changed the world. Some of the most inspirational innovators are from Indiana, which continues to be a springboard for thinking big.

"Hoosiers such as Colonel Eli Lilly, Madam C.J. Walker, Frank Ball and Orville Redenbacher are some of the greatest examples of innovators who achieved extraordinary success because they recognized opportunities, developed ideas and pursued dreams. They knew how to think, and we believe Franklin College graduates can build on their impactful legacies." The Pursuit hinges on six high-impact educational practices:

1. A robust first-year experience: All new students will participate in a topic-based seminar and will benefit from a subsequent series of workshops, peer interactions and skill-building opportunities, as well as from individualized guidance by trained staff and advisers. Another key element of the first-year experience is a yearlong program called Launch. It is specifically designed for new students and provides resources to help with the transition into college.
2. A relevant and responsive liberal arts experience: Specially designed courses will help students learn to see the world through a variety of lenses and to understand how values are formulated from different perspectives.
3. Immersive, applied experiences: Learning will take place somewhere other than in a traditional classroom. The college will expand opportunities so that every student completes one internship, but also, so that every course students take during January's Immersive Term will be experience-based.
4. Overt opportunities to use technology: Whenever possible, both in- and out-of-classroom experiences will involve technology.
5. Undergraduate research opportunities: Over four years, students will conduct research of an increasingly professional caliber, gaining the confidence and ability to pursue and answer meaningful questions.
6. Cohesive professional development opportunities: Every major will integrate customized opportunities for a student's professional development, helping forge their clear vision of the path between college and career.
