The variety of food establishments in Johnson County is simply amazing. There are local eateries and national chains. You can enjoy fancy dining and casual grills. From international to home-cooking, you can find it all in Johnson County.

6 BUSINESS-FRIENDLY

Johnson is the third fastest growing county in the Indianapolis metro area. Current population is 157,000 and several thousand people in southern Indianapolis choose to shop and dine in Greenwood or elsewhere in Johnson County. From Tax Increment Financing (TIF) districts for public financing to federally designated Opportunity Zones, Indiana has been ranked the fifth best state in the nation for business by Chief Executive magazine and first in the Midwest. Johnson County means business.

AFFORDABLE LIVING

For every $300 spent on living expenses in California, only $100 is needed in Johnson County. Comparing housing values to the north side of the metro area, home buyers can get 500 to 2,000 more square feet for the same price. The median home price in Johnson County is $215,000, with homes ranging from 1,800 to 2,400 square feet.

EDUCATION

Johnson County has six public school districts, all with graduation rates above 90%, and there are four private school options. It is home to Franklin College and Ivy Tech Community College, with Central Nine Career Center located nearby in Greenwood. The University of Indianapolis is less than 5 miles from northern Johnson County, and Indianapolis has five other universities and colleges available as well.

TRANSPORTATION

Interstate 65 is the transportation backbone of Johnson County, with U.S. 31 and Ind. 135 handling much of the local traffic. The Indy South Greenwood Airport accommodates corporate and private aircraft and two train systems help move freight. Fully 80% of the U.S. population can be reached within 12 hours from Johnson County. The completion of I-69 through Johnson County by 2024 will cut travel time to Indianapolis, Bloomington, Evansville and other cities. Johnson County is just 25 minutes from Indianapolis attractions and Indianapolis International Airport with direct flights to many major cities. Need to get somewhere? We've got you covered.

OUTDOOR ACTIVITIES

There are nine golf courses in Johnson County, and Whiteland and Franklin have disc golf courses. There are numerous parks and an advanced trail system throughout the county. Check out Apple Works in Trafalgar or Kelsay Farms in Whiteland for a complete autumn experience. Nothing brings out community more than an old-fashioned festival. You can find many of those from spring through fall, and don't forget the Johnson County 4-H and Agricultural Fair in July.

LOCATION LOCATION LOCATION

Johnson County shares a border with Indianapolis, the third largest city in the Midwest. Residents have access to several big-city features like the Indianapolis Colts and Indiana Pacers, the Indianapolis Zoo, the Children's Museum of Indianapolis and more. To the south is Brown County State Park, where you can get some awesome leaf peeping in the autumn, and the rustic scenery of southern Indiana hills. Louisville is only 90 miles away. Whatever your destination, starting from here gets you there faster.

There's so much more to enjoy in Johnson County!

LIFESTYLE AND COMMUNITY

From shopping meccas to wide open spaces, Johnson County offers a variety of amenities to suit any lifestyle.

Greenwood is the county's largest city with a population of nearly 60,000. Shoppers and foodies from all over Indiana flock to Greenwood for variety concentrated in a small area. Situated near Interstate 65, Greenwood has attracted major employers such as the U.S. headquarters of Endress+Hauser and distribution centers for Amazon, ALDI, Ulta and Nestle's.

Education is a high priority in Greenwood. It is served by three public school corporations with graduation rates which average more than 90%. There are four private schools, too.

Five craft breweries call Greenwood home, as well as a variety of restaurants both local and chains. One of those options is Vino Villa, a wine bar and bistro in Old Town Greenwood. Owners Paul and Laura Jacquin repurposed a home built in 1904 for their business.

"Greenwood is very accessible from an interstate standpoint," Jacquin said. "The city itself is starting to do more in the way of weekend outdoor concerts. The restaurant environment is starting to improve with a lot of new additions."

From Craig Park to trails, Greenwood continues to increase amenities. Jacquin also pointed out Greenwood's trail development.

"The first segment of it is right in front of our building," Jacquin said. "It will ultimately connect up to Greenwood Park Mall and potentially up to Indianapolis."

Near future developments will combine living and working spaces with retail and the expansion of IndyGo bus transportation extending to the area.

Bargersville offers some attractive residential options. The houses are larger and on larger lots. Plus, with Interstate 69 coming through, the town is bracing for a full future.

"It's a serene, rural area," Michael Duke said. "Center Grove is a great school system and a huge draw. There's a lot of trail systems starting to be developed. It's just a nice open canvas with a lot of opportunities."

Duke, who owns Duke Homes in Bargersville, is developing one of the newer neighborhoods called Aberdeen. He points out that families love the park and youth sports facilities and it's close to the Mallow Run Winery.

Sitting so close to the future Interstate 69, which can get you to Indianapolis or Bloomington, will only enhance the attraction.

Aberdeen spans 400 acres and is a gated community complete with a guard house. It's the first "wellness lifestyle" neighborhood in the state.

"We're trying to create something where people just don't go in and shut their doors," Duke said. "We've got a lot of trails, woods around the lakes, basketball and tennis courts."

Kids can go into the nearby gardens to pick out their own pumpkin or sweet corn, Duke added.

Franklin serves not only as the county seat but also as the historic hub of Johnson County.

Rob Shilts is executive director of Franklin Heritage Inc., a nonprofit historic preservation group which restored and runs the crown jewel of Franklin, the Historic Artcraft Theatre. Shilts said the theater is now something the community can build around.

“A couple years ago we had 17 new businesses move to town,” he said. “Some of those business owners bought historic homes and moved their families here.”

With a collapsed roof, the abandoned 1922 silent movie and vaudeville house was likely to be bulldozed, when Franklin Heritage purchased the 625-seat theater in 2004. The group raised more than $2 million to restore it. The Artcraft shows classic movies – still on 35 mm film – and hosts other community events such as Glenn Miller Orchestra concerts.

The restoration has spurred a renaissance for downtown Franklin and the entire community.

“We looked at the downtown as a shopping mall with the Artcraft as the anchor store,” Shilts said. “We would be the ones bringing the foot traffic from up to an hour and a half away.”

Franklin also boasts a state-of-the-art high school and Franklin College, a liberal arts and sciences college offering 50 majors and 42 minors. It is considered one of the top colleges and best values in Indiana.

TRAINING

Ivy Tech, Franklin College and Central Nine Career Center offer adults several programs to level up their skills, while increasing the trained workforce.

“There are many job opportunities in our area that require more than a high school diploma, but not a college degree,” Gayle Brooks, continuing education coordinator at C9, said. “We do job trainings that result in short-term, industry-recognized certifications.”

Trainings are usually less than a semester, Brooks said. C9 offers popular programs such as welding, automotive maintenance, HVAC, and EMT training for firefighters, and CompTIA which is an information technology certification.

Ivy Tech’s full-service campus in Franklin recently launched a Certified Production Technician training program.

“We have equipment to provide this training,” Vice Chancellor Stephanie Amos explained. “It’s a four-module training and if students pass all four, they can get this industry-recognized certification in manufacturing skills.”

Ivy Tech is looking to bring more certificate programs, which often can be turned into credit hours toward an advanced degree. Degrees are available in nursing, criminal justice and a program in IT help desk support. The newest programs are dental and medical assisting.

“We have a lot of opportunities to expand the Franklin campus,” Amos added. “It’s just trying to identify the right programs to meet those workforce demands.”

These options add to the uniqueness of Johnson County.

City of Franklin Community Development Specialist Dana Monson said the programs could qualify for state funding.

“By utilizing the state’s Next Level Jobs program, you can get just about all of those services paid for,” Monson said. “Your employees are going to be trained right here in the county. They’re not spending a day driving to a training facility.”

The county participates in the national Work Ready Communities program offering the National Career Readiness Certificate program. Employers are willing to train employees with an NCRC measuring basic employability skills.

“It’s going to greatly enhance your retention of employees, because you’re going to get the right person the first time around,” Monson added.

EDUCATION

Johnson County is home to six public school districts, all of which have 90% graduation rates. There are also four private schools and no less than eight colleges and universities in the region.

The opportunities are diverse, but there are newer programs focused on the 21st Century skills employers need.

Beginning in high school, students learn the value of a “work ethic” and can earn a certificate to prove it. Center Grove High School Principal Jeff Henderson, Ph.D., said the school offers the Governor’s Work Ethic Certificate so graduates can demonstrate their employability skills such as reliability, responsibility and teamwork.

“It’s basic skills like perseverance and problem-solving, service to others, positive attitude, soft communication skills and critical thinking skills,” Henderson said. “Part of the requirements here at the high school is a résumé-writing workshop.”

Students must have a GPA of 2.0 or higher, a 98% attendance record and six hours of community service. These are just a few of the certificate requirements. All districts offer the certificate.

“When potential employers see that certificate on their résumés, they know they have these skills,” City of Franklin Community Development Specialist Dana Monson said. “When we talked to our employers, the thing we heard over and over was the need for people who are ready to work.”

Endress+Hauser, a global production facility whose U.S. headquarters is in Greenwood, holds an annual Community Career+Education Forum to raise awareness among students, parents and educators of careers in Science, Technology, Engineering and Math, or STEM. The exhibition gives middle schoolers hands-on experience with simulators, robotics, games like Are You Smarter Than an Engineer and even a 3D printer. The 2019 event hosted 1,000 students, parents, and teachers.

Brandyn Ferguson, vice president of human resources at Endress+Hauser, said this is a long-term, proactive strategy to increase the talent pipeline. It also makes the students aware of local career opportunities.

Participants range from Duke Energy to Caterpillar and Cummins, in addition to Endress+Hauser.

LAND

Johnson County has several open sites for build-to-suit projects.

"If you want 32-foot ceilings and 8-inch reinforced concrete floors, you can do that," Aspire CEO Christian Maslowski said. "This is a huge plus for companies, especially if they have specific criteria to carry out their operations."

Many sites are shovel-ready, which means the utilities, zoning and surveys are already prepared. Companies can come and build quickly.

"It's ready to build or ready to move in," Maslowski said. "You can build your facility exactly the way you want it." Maslowski added that the county and cities are being very intentional about where these sites are.

"They're putting them where it makes sense," Maslowski said. "These are places that utilities can support. They're putting these developments where it is probably not advantageous to have a housing subdivision."

There are several spec or shell buildings too. These are ready to move into with a quick build-out turnaround, Maslowski said.

A favorable tax climate makes Indiana the best value for businesses in the Midwest and in the top five across the nation. For example, the state has a 3% cap of liability on real property and personal property taxes.

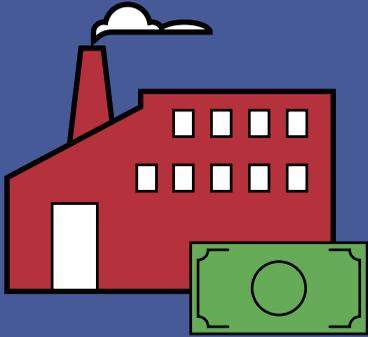

Johnson County offers real and personal property tax abatements for expansion, new equipment or new construction that can last up to 10 years.

Tax increment finance or TIF districts fold a portion of property taxes into a fund that can be used for land purchases, infrastructure improvements, low-interest loans and more.

Franklin was designated an Opportunity Zone in 2018 offering long-term federal tax deferral on capital gains for investments in these areas.

And by mid-2021, the corporate income tax will be 4.9%, with no inventory tax and no gross receipt tax.

TRANSPORTATION AND LOGISTICS

Johnson County is all about connectivity.

"Transportation in all its forms is the backbone of economic development," Aspire CEO Christian Maslowski said. "Companies have to get their products 'just in time' today so the connectivity of interstates like 65 and the coming 69 are crucial."

I-65 comes through Franklin and Greenwood in Johnson County. It connects the Gulf of Mexico to the Great Lakes through Birmingham, Alabama; Nashville, Tennessee; Louisville, Kentucky to Chicago.

Within five years, I-69 will be completed through Johnson County and all of Indiana. It will connect Johnson County to the U.S.-Canada border in Port Huron, Michigan, and eventually will connect to Mexico.

Within 12 hours, you can reach 80% of the U.S. population from Johnson County.

Johnson County is only minutes away from Indianapolis International Airport and home to the second largest FedEx hub in the world. The hub employs more than 4,000 and sorts 99,000 packages per hour.

All this makes Johnson County a natural location for distribution. Several warehouses and two distribution centers – Amazon Fulfillment and Interstate Warehousing – are located here. Add U.S. 31 and Ind. 135 and you have easy access throughout all of Johnson County.

"We are fortunate to live in a county where one minute really means one mile and brings our workforce from a farther distance in a shorter amount of time," Maslowski said. "We can reach a wider range of skill sets due to this advantage."

There is also rail. The Louisville and Indiana rail line runs along I-65 through Franklin and Greenwood. The Indiana Railroad runs through Bargersville.

Johnson County is only 90 miles from the Ohio River and the Port of Louisville. There is also public bus transportation from Greenwood to Indianapolis.

Indiana is called the Crossroads of America, and Johnson County is a major focal point for transportation activity.

AIRPORT

In addition to its roads and interstate highways, Johnson County includes a vital aerial artery in Greenwood. Indy South Greenwood Airport features a 5,100-foot runway to accommodate small aircraft as well as corporate or private jets.

The Indiana State Police recognizes the valuable location. ISP has chosen Indy South as a base of operation for its helicopters and planes because any location in Indiana can be reached within an hour.

Greenwood's Capital Projects Manager Kevin Steinmetz said the airport is the closest to downtown Indianapolis.

"We are the closest airport to Lucas Oil Stadium, Bankers Life Fieldhouse, the Indiana Convention Center and Indiana University medical facilities as well as the University of Indianapolis," Steinmetz said. "Indy South is an important asset for the city and region."

Pilots will be interested to know that the Indy South Greenwood Airport offers free aircraft parking, no landing fees and no ramp fees. Services include leasable hangar space, 24-hour emergency maintenance as well as aircraft maintenance and sales, plus you can learn to fly at two schools or rent a plane. Fuel costs are competitive and there is a 10,000-square-foot, heated hangar.

Aspire Economic Strategic Planning Steering Committee member Dana Monson said Indy South Greenwood Airport is a valuable business tool not just for Johnson County but the entire Midwest.

"So if you have a headquarters in Grand Rapids (Michigan) and you have a strong manufacturing base here, leadership can fly down here in an hour or so, do their business, and fly back within an eight-hour workday."

Indy South Greenwood Airport is on County Line Road near Emerson Avenue at 897 Airport Parkway. Keep an eye out for community events and get to know this valuable resource.

HEALTH CARE

Johnson County residents have ample access to health care primarily through these three hospital systems.

Community Health Network

Community Health Network serves Johnson and surrounding counties as well as the south side of Indianapolis with primary care, specialty care, imaging services and inpatient and outpatient rehabilitation services.

Community's South campus is home to Community Hospital South, Community Cancer Center South, Community Surgery Center South, and Community Heart and Vascular. Exceptional care, simply delivered, is what sets Community apart and what makes it a leading not-for-profit healthcare destination in central Indiana.

Headquartered in Indianapolis, Community has been deeply committed to the communities it serves since opening its first hospital, Community Hospital East, in 1956. Now with more than 13,000 caregivers and 200 sites of care, Community puts patients first while offering a full continuum of healthcare services, world-class innovations and a new focus on population health management.

Franciscan Health

Franciscan Health Indianapolis is conveniently located adjacent to Greenwood and Johnson County. It has 453 beds and is served by a staff of highly qualified employed and affiliated physicians as well as clinical and support employees.

Franciscan is home to many nationally recognized programs in areas such as cardiovascular care, cancer services, women and children's services, orthopedic care, joint replacement surgery and sports medicine. It provides the only Level 3 neonatal intensive care unit in south-central Indiana.

Additionally, the organization offers urgent-care services at Franciscan ExpressCare centers at two locations in Greenwood. One of the sites, Franciscan Health at Stones Crossing, provides a full range of primary and specialty care physician services, physical therapy, imaging, mammography, bone density, X-ray and a variety of spa services. Franciscan WorkingWell also serves Johnson County employers and employees with a variety of occupational medicine and travel medicine services.

Johnson Memorial Health

Johnson Memorial Health is a nationally recognized network of physicians, services and health care resources based in Johnson County. The centerpiece is Johnson Memorial Hospital, located in Franklin, which has been serving patients as the county's only hospital since 1947.

Franciscan Health

Johnson Memorial provides award-winning services including cancer and cardiovascular care, maternity, orthopedics and sports medicine, weight loss and general surgery, wound healing, wellness services and more. The hospital is also home to one of the top 100 home-care services in the country and complete occupational, physical and speech therapy services.

In addition to the main campus in Franklin, Johnson Memorial has expanded to include primary care centers in Greenwood, Whiteland and Franklin. Johnson Memorial Health has received numerous accolades, including a recent "A" safety grade from the Leapfrog Group, a non-profit watchdog organization serving healthcare consumers.

Choice Dental Centre of Greenwood

Did you know?

Over 1/3 of Americans did not see a dentist in the last year. 40% of these Americans said they didn't seek dental care due to cost or lack of insurance.

What is the solution?

Dr. Michelle Lumsdon, mother of two and practice owner, has created an in-office membership plan at Choice Dental Centre, making dentistry affordable and cost transparent.

Why is this important?

Traditional dental insurance plans are covering less and less, and fewer people are eligible. With a membership plan, there are no wait periods, no insurance claims, and no pre-authorizations.

A healthy mouth is an essential part of overall health. We would love the opportunity to discuss your concerns with you, and help you achieve your overall health goals.

COMMUNITY HIGHLIGHTS

Bargersville - Bargersville is a community of 8,000 intersected by Ind. 135 and Ind. 144. It will be the closest community to the I-69 corridor when it is completed in 2024. Activities include the Harvest Moon Fall Festival, the Summer Concert Series and Indiana Railroad Company's annual Santa Train in downtown Bargersville. It is also home to Mallow Run Winery.

Edinburgh - Edinburgh was the first settlement in Johnson County and is best known for the Edinburgh Premium Outlets mall and Camp Atterbury military base. The community of 5,000 is easily accessible from I-65 and U.S. 31 in southeastern Johnson County. There are three parks and a sports complex. Edinburgh has several community events including the Firecracker Festival on the Fourth of July, the Edinburgh Fall Festival and the Community Christmas Bazaar.

Greenwood - The largest city in Johnson County, Greenwood is home to nearly 60,000 residents. There is so much to do in the city. The Greenwood Parks Department offers several programs, events and Freedom Springs Aquatics Park. Major events include the Freedom Festival in June, WAMMfest in August, and a summer concert series at the Greenwood Amphitheater, all at Craig Park. There are also events at the Indy South Greenwood Airport.

Franklin - The county seat, Franklin is a hub of activity but retains a small-town feeling of community. Attractions include the Historic Artcraft Theatre and the lovely courthouse square. It boasts an annual farmer's market, a skate park and a family aquatic center. It is also home to Franklin College with its numerous entertainment options. Victorian mansions are being restored in the heart of the city. Franklin is home to 25,000 residents.

New Whiteland - New Whiteland was incorporated in 1954 when U.S. 31 was rerouted. It is one of the most affordable towns in Indiana for retirees. Residents enjoy five parks and is one of the 10 safest cities in Indiana according to the HomeSnacks website. New Whiteland has 6,153 residents by U.S. Census estimates and is one of the fastest-growing areas of Johnson County.

Nineveh - Nineveh is a unique location in Johnson County with an unusual history. This unincorporated community is named for a nearby creek. Scenes from the 1986 movie "Hoosiers" were shot in the Nineveh Elementary School which was lost to a fire a few years later.

Prince's Lakes - In southern Johnson County, just west of Camp Atterbury Fish and Wildlife Area, is the hidden gem of Johnson County. It's called Prince's Lakes with 14 lakes and several others nearby. East Lake is the largest in the area covering 67 acres and offering water skiing and other activities. The town has 1,400 residents. Many houses are on lake-front property.

Trafalgar - Located at the intersection of Ind. 135 and Ind. 252, Trafalgar is the definition of a small community with slightly more than 1,000 residents. Even though it is small, Trafalgar offers concerts, special events and even a bamboo maze at the Apple Works orchard. Allendale Christian Camp and Retreat Center offers an eight-person zip line, a ropes course and a climbing tower for groups.

Whiteland - Whiteland is a small community of almost 5,000 residents between New Whiteland and Franklin on the U.S. 31 corridor. It is a desired quality community moving forward with 56% residential growth approved and advancing. For a small community there is much to do, including kart racing at Whiteland Raceway Park and live music at Whit's Inn. Whiteland's premier event is The Greater Whiteland Community Day.

STORIES OF SUCCESS

Caitlyn Ruhana

Many students want to pursue a bachelor's degree but don't know where to begin. This rang true for Greenwood resident Caitlyn Ruhana, who chose to attend Ivy Tech to start on a degree to discover what she was passionate about for a fraction of the cost.

"People don't give Ivy Tech enough credit," she explained. "I came down from a four year university, not knowing what I wanted to do. Ivy Tech gave me the ability to work full-time and still get credits done at an affordable price."

Caitlyn decided to earn an associate degree in Business Administration, using the program's Transfer as a Junior pathway. Thanks to this Transfer as a Junior opportunity, she will transfer directly to IUPUI once she graduates in December 2019.

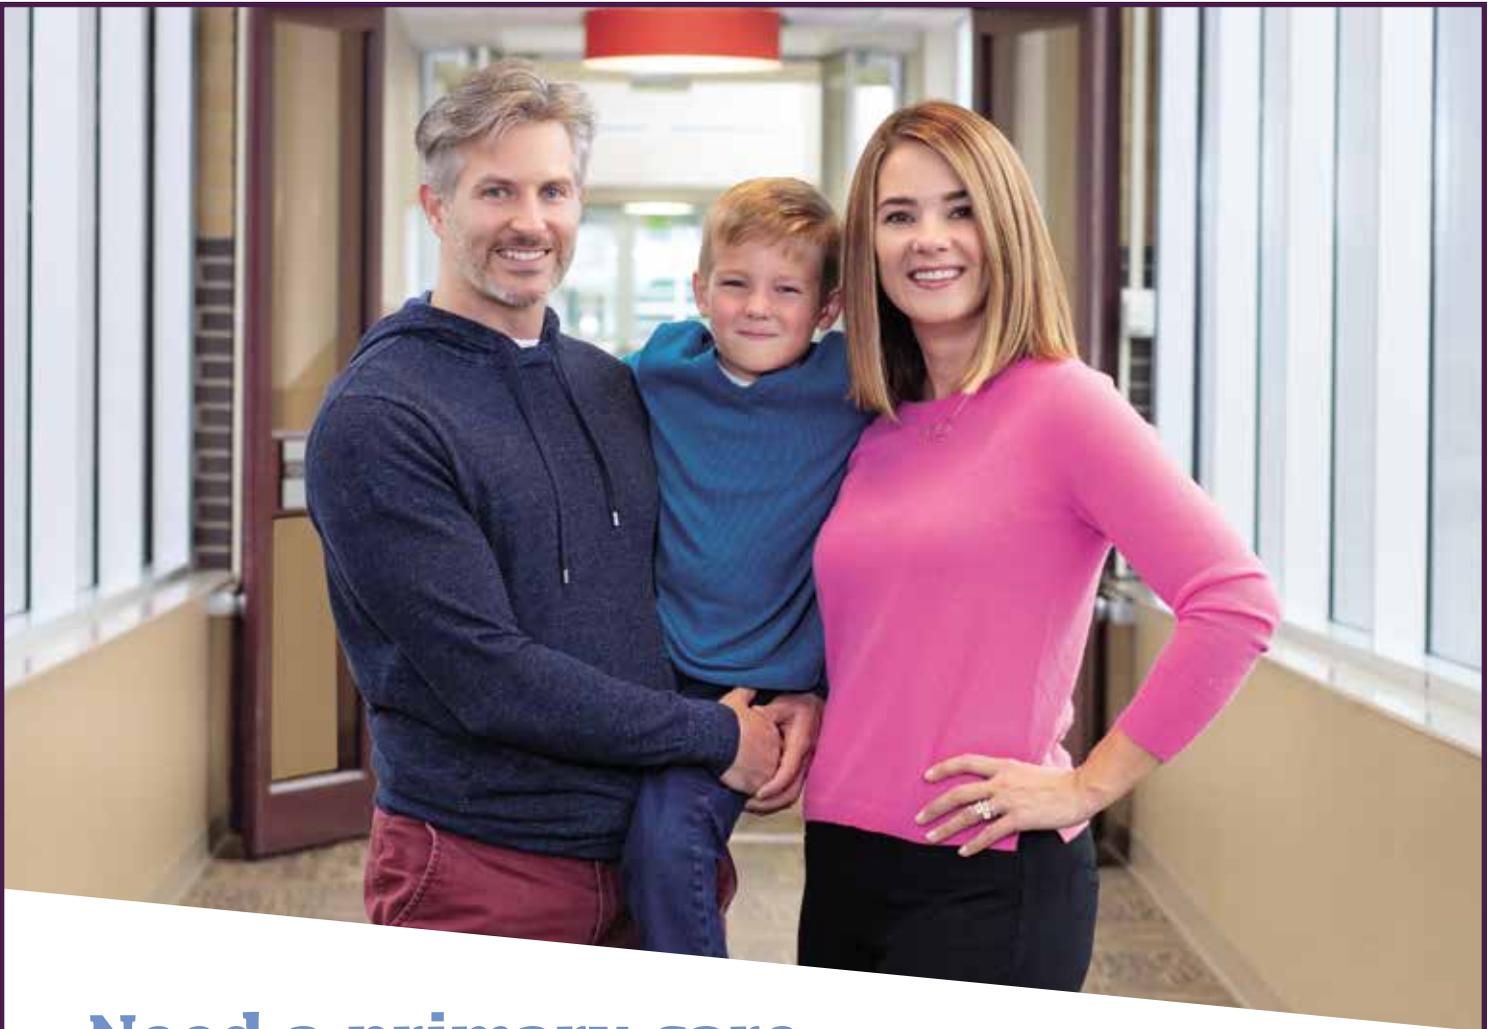

Becky Rector

Ivy Tech is the perfect place for working individuals like Becky Rector, looking to add a credential that can help get them a promotion or take the next step in their career. Becky enrolled in the College's accounting program in hopes to get promoted at her place of work. While the job did not work out as expected, causing her to leave the company, she decided to finish her degree anyway.

Working full time as a student had its challenges, but she knew it would all pay off when she graduates in December 2019. After she graduates, she hopes to earn a promotion that will enable her to utilize the new skills she has learned at the company she now works for.

"Ivy Tech is a great school to attend to get your core college classes at an affordable price," she said. "They offer classes at all times, so it's easy to get in all the classes you need."
